

Shauna Ross

Barrister-at-law, Nigel Bowen Chambers

Background and Qualifications

Prior to joining the Bar, Shauna Ross' previous experience as a solicitor at a multinational law firm in Sydney and at the centralised international Intellectual Property department at British American Tobacco in London, provides her with a deep understanding as to the needs, expectations and preferences of solicitors and clients.

Shauna graduated from Kings College London with a Bachelor of Laws (LLB) in 2006. She also achieved the International Baccalaureate from St Andrew's College, Dublin in 2002. Shauna holds a Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice from the College of Law, Sydney, 2009.

Experience at the Bar and Notable Cases

Shauna was admitted to the Bar in April 2012 and has since enhanced her specialist knowledge and expertise in intellectual property matters, including trade marks, copyright, designs, patents and domain name disputes. Her considerable experience in these areas complements her broader commercial practice.

Shauna is regularly briefed to provide complex advice and appear in matters at first instance, on appeal and those in which interlocutory relief is sought. Often appearing unled or led by highly regarded Senior Counsel in large-scale litigation, Shauna has appeared in the High Court of Australia, Federal Court of Australia (including the Full Court), New South Wales Court of Appeal, Federal Circuit Court and the Australian Trade Marks Office.

Matters in which Shauna is briefed include those with trade mark, copyright, designs and patent claims (including questions of ownership, validity, revocation/removal and infringement for all forms of intellectual property), contravention of the Australian Consumer Law, breach of contract, passing off, as well as other matters of a commercial nature. Shauna also appears before tribunals such as NCAT and Commissions of Inquiry, including ICAC.

Shauna has been recognised in the Doyles Leading Intellectual Property Barristers (NSW) in 2016, 2017, 2020 and 2021.

Shauna contributes to a number of trade mark publications, including Lahore Patents, Trade Marks & Related Rights.
